Cliff Climbing Company is a mountain climbing gear manufacturer founded in Denver, Colorado. They are a small, local gear provider that is looking to branch out to compete with bigger companies such as Black Diamond, Mammut and Petzl Climbing Gear. Although new, they wish to be portrayed as a rising brand looking to reach the peak of all mountain climbing needs.

The surrounding area is filled with countless mountains, ridges, and forests that adventurers love exploring throughout the year. With the Rocky Mountains nearby, they seek to market their gear to eager climbers from all walks of life. The CCC wishes to supply outdoor gear to all distributors across the United States at one point as they continue to develop the most durable and stylish gear to the most beginner climbers, even professionals in the field.

With an experienced climber as their head of operations, Cliff Climbing Co. looks to provide quality gear that can have everyday uses as well. They provide all types of climbing equipment from headgear to everyday items such as thermoses and shoes. They look to provide to individuals of all ages that are experienced or eager to start their climbing careers.

Most importantly, Cliff Climbing Co. is looking forward to seeing new horizons outside of the Colorado area and is looking to branch out. They are trying to open new manufacturing plants near the east coast as a starting point for expansion.
